Frontline for the treatment and prevention of fleas and ticks in cats and kittens over 8 weeks of age, the minimum treatment interval is 4 weeks. Fipronil based flea treatment for cats, pack of 3. FRONTLINE® Spot On is a long-lasting treatment and will protect your pet from fleas, ticks and lice in line with the timescales in the chart above.

Bathing or water immersion of dogs 48 hours after application will not stop FRONTLINE® Spot On working effectively. Apply at 6 weekly intervals if the pet is shampooed weekly with a chlorhexidine-based shampoo and 5 weekly if emollient shampoos are used.

before treating your cat or dog, please make sure that you're familiar with the following points about using FRONTLINE® Spot On:

FRONTLINE® Spot On is for the treatment of cats and dogs only and for external use only

Veterinary advice should be sought prior to using FRONTLINE® Spot On if there is any sign of skin irritation or if the pet is unwell

FRONTLINE® Spot On is safe to use in breeding, pregnant and lactating bitches and queens

Do not use on sick or convalescent animals

Do not use on kittens weighing less than 1kg or puppies weighing less than 2kg

Minimum treatment interval 4 weeks

Do not use on puppies or kittens less than 8 weeks of age

Do not overdose

Pets with a known hypersensitivity to insecticides or alcohol should also avoid contact with FRONTLINE® Spot On

Avoid contact with the animal's eyes

The product should not be used on rabbits as adverse reactions and even death could occur.

It is important to apply the dose to an area where the animal cannot lick it off. If licking occurs, a brief period of hypersalivation may occur, due mainly to the nature of the carrier
